The Chatteris Educational Foundation is a non-profit charitable organisation aiming to help Hong Kong students improve their English and promote cultural exchange. JOB TITLE: Chatteris Native-speaking English Tutor (CNET)

JOB DESCRIPTION:

Chatteris operates the Chatteris International Graduate Programme which allows university graduates from any discipline to contribute directly to the life and learning experience of Hong Kong students. As a CNET, you will be placed full time in a local school to help improve the English language environment and motivate students to speak English. You will also have the opportunity to develop a lasting insight into Hong Kong and Chinese culture and to form lifelong international friendships with the team of CNETs working alongside you.

Teaching in a Chinese school environment is a challenging and rewarding experience. CNETs develop many valuable skills, such as confidence, flexibility, patience, communication and an appreciation of cultural diversity. In addition to professional in-school experience, the Chatteris International Graduate Programme offers further opportunities, including project management, career development and community work. These initiatives provide graduates with skills that can be easily transferred to any future career. Extensive support and training is provided throughout the year.
